

Disclaimer for participants under 18 years old

RoboParty'2010 will take place on 19-21 February 2010 at the University of Minho Sports pavilion in Guimarães, Portugal, and it consists of a pedagogical event which gathers teams of 4 people each, for 3 days and two nights, to teach how to build mobile and autonomous robots, in a simple and funny way. After some initial training (Electronics, mechanical build up, robot programming, etc.), it is given to each team one robotic kit called Bot'n Roll developed by SAR – Soluções de Automação e Robótica and by the University of Minho, to be built by the team. Industrial Electronics University Professors and students will guide the participants in the robot development and build up.

At the same time, participants can try some of the parallel activities going on like sports, music, internet, games, etc. Each participant brings his sleeping bag and stays lodged on the venue (in a proper place) during the whole event.

Each team is made up of 4 elements, being compulsory one of them an adult (teacher, parent, adult family member, etc.) which becomes responsible by the team.
